 - Know more about GALILEO and its mission and vision
 - Know how to access GALILEO at your library or home
 - Navigate and search in GALILEO
 - Identify key GALILEO resources containing information about African American History and Genealogy

What is GALILEO?

- GALILEO is an initiative of the University System of Georgia
- We're in the same reporting line as the archives and the Georgia Public Library Service—this makes collaboration easy!
- What we do...

Mission

- Serve as Georgia's statewide virtual library providing:
- Equitable access to core high-quality instructional and informational resources to all Georgians
- Access to the tools necessary to help Georgians become lifelong learners
- Partnerships that create open access to historical, cultural, and educational content for and about Georgia
- Interface(s) that are easy to access and designed and customized to meet the needs of GALILEO libraries and the learners they serve
- Facilitate the efficient and cost-effective provision of library services across the state through collaborative resource acquisition, training, and sharing of workflows, resources, and technological infrastructure

Vision: GALILEO facilitates the creation of knowledge and provides tools and resources for all Georgians to meet their lifelong learning needs.

Logging In

The screenshot shows the GALILEO website interface. At the top left is the logo for Georgia's Virtual Library GALILEO, an initiative of the University System of Georgia. The background features a stylized globe with a grid pattern against a starry night sky. The main heading reads "Imagine. Discover. Explore." Below this is a search section titled "Start Here: Find Your School or Library" with a red arrow icon. It includes four tabs: "All", "K-12", "Public Libraries" (which is selected), and "Colleges & Universities". A search input field contains the text "fulton County Library System", and a "Go" button is to its right. A dropdown menu below the input field shows two results: "Fulton County Library System" and "Gladys S. Dennard Library @ South Fulton". Below the search section is a section titled "Steps to Access GALILEO" with the text "GALILEO is free to all Georgians via schools, colleges and public libraries." At the bottom, there are three red circular icons: a white arrow pointing up and to the right, a white padlock, and a white magnifying glass.

Family history research begins in modern times and works backward, generation by generation. Discoveries for all American families, regardless of ethnicity, are made through census records, military papers, vital records (births, marriages, and deaths), and other documents created over a lifetime.

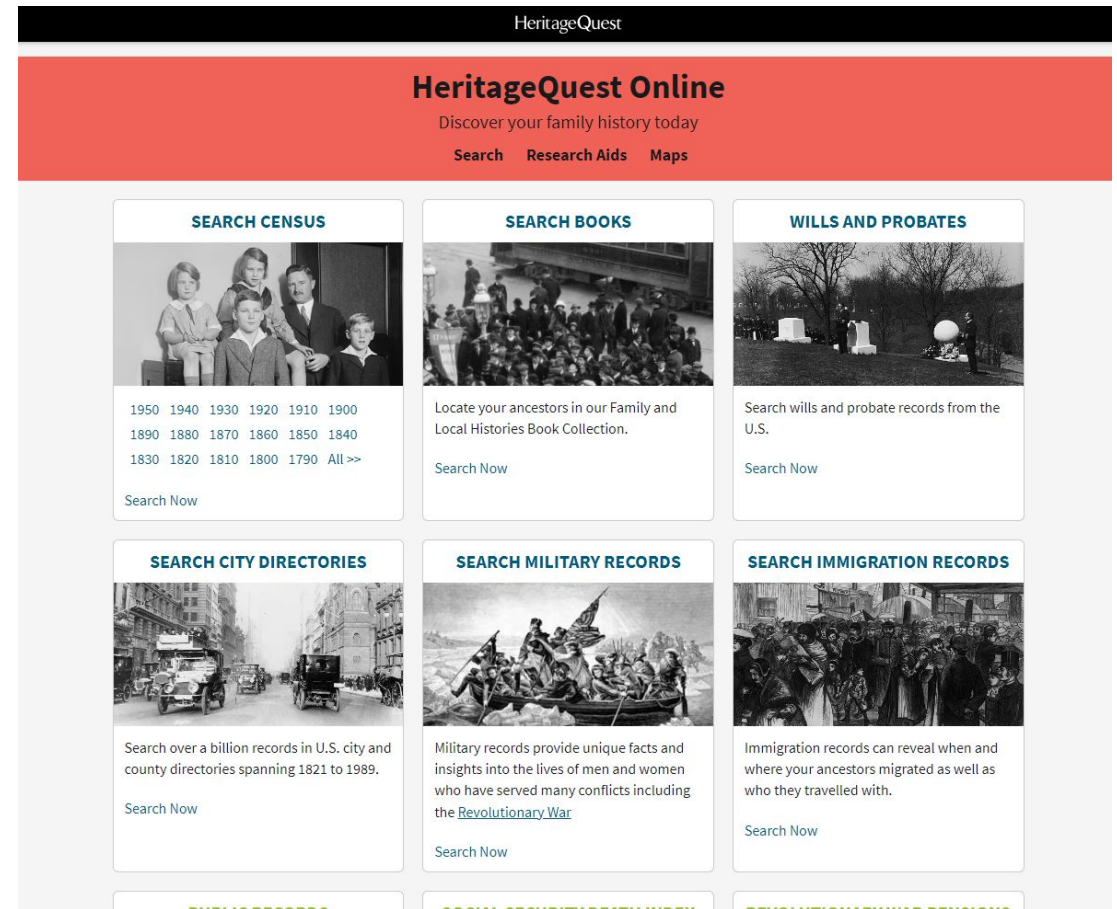

African American family history research, however, can pose unique challenges as you follow your family into the 19th century, just prior to the Civil War.

Part One of this guide walks you through the steps to discovering your family's unique history through the 20th century and back to the 1870 census. Part Two shows you clues to look for in the 1870 census and earlier records, with tips for continuing your research even further back through time.
